

A technical line drawing of a rectangular frame assembly, likely a component of a bed or a storage unit. The drawing shows a perspective view of a rectangular frame with a series of parallel slats or bars running across its width. The frame is composed of several rectangular sections, some of which are connected by small circular fasteners or rivets. The drawing is a black and white line art, typical of technical specifications.